Can you crack the phonetic alphabet code?

Like many other countries, the United Kingdom police use the phonetic alphabet for error-free communication via radio. The system is made up of words beginning with a letter from the alphabet. Use the phonetic alphabet to work out what our Kent Police Open Day-associated words are...

	Phonetic name	How to say the letter
A	Alpha	AL FAH

Why not try...?

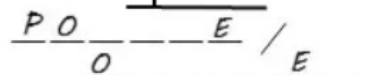

If you are on the bus, walking down the street, or stuck in traffic, try reading out the number plate of a vehicle in front of you. This will be an invaluable experience for you should you have to give the details to someone.

If there is a group of you, why not try playing a game of hangman using the phonetic alphabet? Extra bonus points if the words/terms that you are using are police-related.

If there is a group of you – all write down a name, yours or your favourite celebrities! Pop all of the names in a tub and take turns to draw one out and spell it out phonetically!

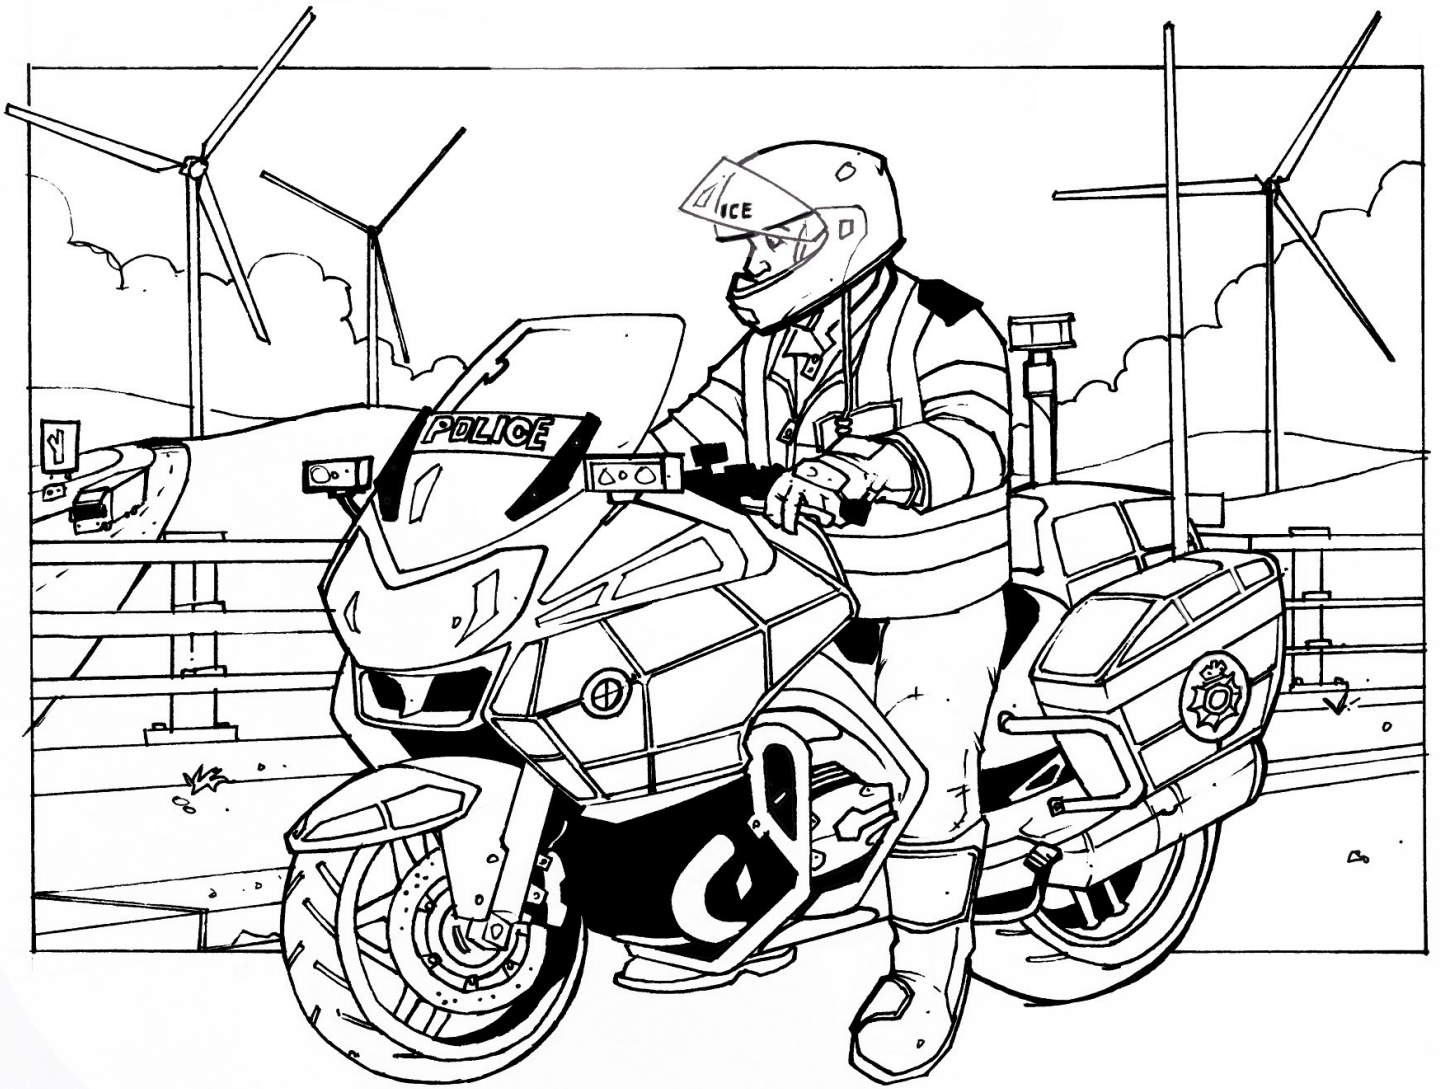

"Being Online" Bingo from the UK Safer Internet Centre

Can you find someone who has done each of these 'Being Online' bingo things? Write a different name in each. For more resources from the UK Safer Internet Centre please visit <https://saferinternet.org.uk/> Come and talk to Kent Children's University and Kent Police colleagues in the Internet Safety Zone to learn more.
